Abstract of the Disclosure

Socks that are designed to provide a formal appearance when worn, while providing comfort and safeguarding an individual's health. In one aspect, a sock comprises a first portion formed of a first material (e.g., colored synthetic material) that provides a formal appearance when the sock is worn, and a second portion formed of a second material which safeguards against unhealthy foot conditions. For example, the second portion can be made of a cotton material that substantially covers a person's foot when the sock is worn, while not being visible when a shoe is worn.